Turning second thoughts into a second chance.

Tubal ligation is one of the most common forms of contraception for women in the United States. While the procedure is intended to be permanent, options are available to help you have another baby even though your tubes are "tied". Mississippi Fertility Institute has over a decade of experience helping women just like you become a mother, again. Options that are available for you to consider include:

In Vitro Fertilization:

Natural conception involves the fertilization of eggs by sperm in the fallopian tube. When the tubes are tied pregnancy is still possible through the use of In Vitro Fertilization. In vitro fertilization is a laboratory process that mimics natural reproduction by combining eggs from the woman with sperm cells from the man to create embryos in a laboratory setting. One or two of these embryos are then transferred to the woman's uterus to begin a normal pregnancy. The primary advantage of in vitro fertilization is its office based setting thus avoiding the need for surgery or postoperative recuperation.

Tubal reversal:

Tubal reversal is an outpatient surgery procedure requiring anesthesia and a small incision in the bikini area. The surgery reconnects the ends of the tube disrupted by the tubal ligation. Discharge from the hospital usually occurs the next morning. Recuperation typically requires several weeks of rest at home before resumption of normal activities. The primary advantage of tubal reversal surgery lies in its ability to allow couples to attempt pregnancy naturally following surgery.

If you're having second thoughts, allow us to offer you a second chance at having a child. Please contact us if you have questions or would like to consult with a physician.
